

Relief Seed Regulations Tightened Up

No More Than 300 Bushels Allowed To Any Farmer

Some tightening up of regulations regarding issuance of relief seed for this year was sent last week to the federal government. The regulations (which were not made public) were made in the following manner:

The instructions, dealing largely with seed, emphasize that a farmer will not be allowed to cover more acreage than last year in order to secure a larger quota and must be prepared to take no action that will result in his application in excess.

The policy is largely the same as last year. The applications must be taken by field men or municipal officials who are responsible for the same. The necessary forms must be known and forwarded to Edmonton by the municipality for approval of the federal government. The necessary forms must be known and forwarded to Edmonton by the municipality for approval of the federal government.

300 acre maximum
This year the maximum acreage for which the government will supply seed is fixed at 300 acres, and the maximum which will be considered in an application must not be more than 300 acres.

Very little in other words if a farmer plans to plant more than 300 acres, he must satisfy officials that he requires assistance and must be able to give a satisfactory account of his 1937 crop, if any.

After the preliminary details are arranged the government will authorize up to 300 acres, which means the farmer himself must be sufficient to look after any more than 300 acres.

Approved sufficient acreage
Furnished sufficient acreage land is the first step in the application. The farmer must be authorized for the first 50 acres, including what the farmer himself may have on hand. The subsequent acreage and subsequent acreage will be authorized as follows:

Acreage	Amount of Seed Authorized
Up to 50	75
100	120
200	165
300	210
400	255
500	300

Nothing definite has been received as to the amount of feed or fuel to be issued.

Grain Overages Bill

Licence Fees for Grain Buyers and Agents Reduced

The bill will result in a reduction of "elevators" grain elevators to pay the value of grain overages into a special government fund for the benefit of grain buyers and agents.

An amendment to the bill allows elevators to offset any shortage against an overage in the present of the shortage occurring at the same level.

Reduction in licence fees compared with provisions in the bill introduced was voted by the House when considering the regulation and licensing of grain buyers.

The bill required a licence fee of $25 from a grain buyer who did not employ agents, and a fee of $50 from a grain buyer who did employ agents.

Very often a poor neighbor has adapted himself to the new conditions. It is no longer a good idea to use a poor neighbor as a model.

Source Of Peace And Plenty

"Peaceful is my garden. Contentment is my life," is the motto appearing in colored wood on many an old sampler or in old English script on the most beautiful of tapestries.

The two sentiments became an association of ideas that is most appropriate. For what man or woman is there who does not instinctively recognize a sign of contentment brought into contact with a peaceful garden at the close of a long and weary day. Indeed, what is more restful than a period of physical and spiritual repose, the shadow of tree and shrub beneath, as the perfume of flowers lingers, when the robin sings his night note and the hawk mews with oscillating wings above nocturnal moon shimmering wooded glades.

These are joys and pleasures which all may drink deep. They may come within the experience, the ken, of all who can not waste a plot of ground, a high of contentment brought into contact with a peaceful garden at the close of a long and weary day. Indeed, what is more restful than a period of physical and spiritual repose, the shadow of tree and shrub beneath, as the perfume of flowers lingers, when the robin sings his night note and the hawk mews with oscillating wings above nocturnal moon shimmering wooded glades.

It is the desire to create such a sanctuary for himself that forms the basis of the most inspiring motive in labor man is created to garden for him, coupled with the desire inherent from the days of Adam and Eve to co-operate in nature to make things grow, perhaps a little of the pride of possessors.

And all these pleasures combined with a utilitarian value are attainable for every man and woman on the ground, whether resident on the farm or a dweller in the village or small town. All that is necessary is a moderate amount of space, and a few plants, some of which will yield delicious vegetables and small fruits may be called in the creative artist. A change or even a small area in which the dwelling is set, in some cases furnished by an additional vacant lot, and on the farm it may run to the disposition of a few seeds, but no matter whether the need is to be satisfied in a small area, or in a large one, it can be made to create a beautiful spot.

From Earliest Times
It is the desire to create such a sanctuary for himself that forms the basis of the most inspiring motive in labor man is created to garden for him, coupled with the desire inherent from the days of Adam and Eve to co-operate in nature to make things grow, perhaps a little of the pride of possessors.

Can Build Quickly
If a seed selection program is carried out from year to year it will not only be before the market, but it will be a source of pleasure and engage in landscape architecture on an appreciable scale, planting in mass for variety, color or type to produce as full an effect as is found in the city of the city. By following the same program it will be found before it will be able to develop types of vegetables best suited to his own particular soil and climate, and by selection and by selection it can be made just as effectively and efficiently in the kitchen garden as in the section of the grounds devoted to pleasure only to plant the eye.

There is economy in a factor of landscape architecture. Little need be spent in the purchase of shrubs and trees if more advantage were taken of native plants and shrubs of the garden in which about to be planted. The use of being acquainted with beautiful groupings can be made of species.

Can be Used for the taking in their native habitat and with good results. The use of native plants and shrubs of the garden in which about to be planted. The use of being acquainted with beautiful groupings can be made of species.

At the time of writing favorable climatic prospects for starting a garden or reestablishing a run down garden this spring appear to be much brighter than they have for some years. The greater part of the previous year, prices and in the not unusual desire to recognize losses of the past few years from the grain fields it is to be hoped that the rewards that can be secured from a garden will not be overlooked.

Use Of Waste Material
Reference has been made to the opportunity of taking advantage of materials to hand in the construction of a garden and this is referred to by Aristotle, Thomas of Erasmus, Aristotle, in the current issue of "The Gardeners' Magazine," who suggests that some use could be made of waste field soil and other waste material, such as they have been in England and elsewhere by quoting Miss Carmichael.

What is Heaven? Is it not
Just a friendly smile
Waived with smiles and roiled with fun,
Where the days pass like a dream,
Not too fast and not too slow,
Looking backward as they go.
At the horizon left behind,
To transport the penitent mind."
